

El Beso de Judas (The Kiss of Judas)

He was one of the 12 who followed
Jesus of Nazareth to preach,
and he was the man of trust, the treasurer,
who broke bread with Jesus,
but one day betrayal filled his soul,
and the love of money blinded him,
and for some miserable coins,
he betrayed the Master with a kiss.

Judas, your wickedness has no price.
Blinded, you do not know love or truth.
Your behavior will cost you weeping:
For that ingratitude,
for not being faithful to the one who loved you so.

It is the image of Jesus that is in my brother,
the love and trust of the Lord;
I will take care not to sell him or betray him:
He is the temple of the Spirit of God,
and if I were to give my riches and properties,
and were to die in a burning stake of fire,
these things do not benefit me at all:
I am nothing if there is no love in my soul.
